

DUAL DEGREE AND EXCHANGE PROGRAMS

Dual-Degree and Exchange Programs

Dual-Degree

Applicable degrees: Master of Arts in International Relations

To enhance their graduate education and professional opportunities, Master of Arts in International Relations students may pursue dual-degree in business, law, public administration, public health, public policy, and international diplomacy.

To be admitted to any of the dual-degree programs, students must be accepted by both schools independently. Dual-degree students reduce their time at Johns Hopkins SAIS by one full semester (16 credits) and can normally complete both degrees up to one year faster than if the degrees were completed separately.

Code	Title	Credits
Johns Hopkins University Carey School of Business		Master of Business Administration
Wharton School of at the University of Pennsylvania		Master of Business Administration
Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth		Master of Business Administration
Darden School of Business at the University of Virginia		Master of Business Administration
INSEAD		Master of Business Administration
Stanford University School of Law		Juris Doctor
University of Virginia Law School		Juris Doctor
Johns Hopkins University Bloomberg School of Public Health		MS in Public Health
Tsinghua University		ML in International Relations

KDI School of Public Policy and Management	Master of Public Policy, Master of Development Policy, Master of Public Management
--	--

Students interested in pursuing a dual degree not mentioned above may petition the Office of Academic Affairs for an ad-hoc program of study. Requests will be considered on a case-by-case basis.

Exchange Programs

Applicable degrees: Master of Arts in International Relations, Master of Arts in International Affairs

Participating in an exchange program offers students a unique opportunity to gain new perspectives on their program of study. The school offers four exchange programs for students entering their third semester. Students are selected through an internal application process. The exchange partnerships include:

Hertie School of Governance in Berlin, Germany

Students may enroll in courses offered in the Masters of Public Policy or Masters of International Affairs programs. Courses cover topics such as policy analysis, finance and trade, security and sustainability.

Lee Kuan Yew (LKY) School of Public Policy at the National University of Singapore at the Bukit Timah Campus.

Ranked first in Asia, NUS is a top university with strong global partnerships and faculty who bring real-life policy experience to the classroom. Students take classes taught in English in topics such as urban development, globalization and economic development.

Sciences Po in Paris, France

Students can choose English taught courses within the Paris School of International Affairs, School of Public Affairs, Urban School, European Affairs, Economics & Business, and Communications. In Paris, students can take advantage of the internationally diverse community while being in a capital city that draws leading figures from around the world.