PUBLIC MENTAL HEALTH RESEARCH, CERTIFICATE

Public Mental Health Research Certificate Program

OVERVIEW
This program is offered through the Department of Mental Health and provides graduate training in understanding the causes and consequences of mental disorders in populations. Courses describe clinical and behavioral features, the incidence and prevalence of disorders, and identify factors that promote or influence the occurrence, persistence, or severity of mental and behavioral disorders. Effective research strategies in public mental health include the operationalization of case definitions, measurement in populations, design of prevention strategies, and analytical techniques. The goals are to increase the epidemiologic expertise of psychiatrists and other mental health professionals and to increase the number of epidemiologists, biostatisticians, and health policymakers, with an interest in psychiatric disorders.

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES
Upon completion of this certificate program, students will have enhanced understanding of the complex field of research in public mental health. After completing core and elective courses, students will be able to:

1. Understand and discuss the organization of diagnoses of mental disorders used in clinical and public health settings, as well as the available modalities for measuring the diagnoses in populations;
2. Realize and discuss the burden of mental disorders in the global population;
3. Recognize and describe the wide range of social and biological etiologic factors related to mental disorders;
4. Evaluate methods of prevention and treatment for mental disorders;
5. Be able to describe the system of treatment for mental disorders in the United States and around the world.

REQUIREMENTS FOR SUCCESSFUL COMPLETION
This certificate program consists of a minimum of 20 credits in the Department of Mental Health. All required and elective courses must be taken for a letter grade unless the course is only offered Pass/Fail; a grade of B or better is required in all certificate coursework, and students must maintain a 2.75 or better overall GPA for all certificate coursework. The certificate program length is flexible; however, the certificate program must be completed within three years.

Tuition, application fee, and book costs are subject to change from one academic year to another academic year. The student should review the section of the website that addresses completion (https://publichealth.jhu.edu/academics/certificate-programs/requirements-for-successful-completion-of-a-certificate-program/) before completing certificate program requirements. The student’s transcript will not indicate that the certificate was earned until the Notification of Completion has been submitted, verified by the certificate program, and processed by the Registrar.

Applying to the certificate program as a JHU graduate student
Students already enrolled in a graduate program at JHU are not required to submit the School’s electronic admissions application, but are required to email the Certificate Program Contact (pscott2@jhu.edu) prior to starting coursework.

CURRENT BSPH students are required to email the Administrative Coordinator (certificate-bsph.mh@jh.edu) prior to the start of taking classes with their intent to pursue the certificate.

COURSE OF STUDY
Students should check the BSPH course directory (https://publichealth.jhu.edu/courses/) to confirm when courses are offered.
