NON-DEGREE TRAINING

Non-Degree Training

HPM Academic Institutes

The Department encourages all students to take advantage of the many educational opportunities offered throughout the Johns Hopkins University. Many opportunities are available for formal and informal coursework in non-traditional formats.

The Department offers graduate courses in Institutes throughout the academic year, specifically in the January intersession (Winter Institute), in the June session (Summer Institute) and during 2nd term, in Barcelona Spain (Fall Institute).

Institutes are opportunities for students to take courses in compressed formats, from 1 to 4 days, over a 1 to 3 week period. Courses taken for academic credit may be applied to degree programs at the School of Public Health and to the appropriate certificate programs. Other Departments, Programs and Centers within the Bloomberg School offer additional Institutes. For the most up to date information, consult the School of Public Health Institutes web page (https://www.jhsph.edu/academics/continuing-and-executive-education/institutes/).

Executive Education

LTVH is a fully on-line, multidisciplinary, inter-professional program offered from January to June each year. The interactive curriculum provides health care leaders with the requisite knowledge and skills to transform their organizations for success under value-based health care. The program starts with an intense 3 days of on-line learning in January, followed by weekly Wednesday evening seminars thru early June, spanning finance, leadership, negotiation, quality, population health, ethics and IT.
