

HISTORY, BACHELOR OF ARTS

History Major Requirements

(Also see Requirements for a Bachelor's Degree. (<https://e-catalogue.jhu.edu/ksas-wse/undergraduate-policies/academic-policies/requirements-bachelors-degree/>))

The Krieger School classifies history as both a social scientific and humanistic discipline. This dual classification accords well with the wide range of explanatory and interpretive approaches to the past now prevailing in the discipline of history. One of the history program's goals is to introduce students to these varied approaches. Although the department offers strong preparation for students who seek to specialize in a particular cultural or geographic region, history at Johns Hopkins is primarily issue and topic oriented. It also puts a premium on developing the capacity to reason comparatively and on deepening the student's understanding of global connections among cultures in the past and in contemporary life.

The department offers undergraduate courses ranging from large introductory classes to small, focused seminars that encourage intensive interaction with individual professors and with other students. Beyond the introductory level, many of our courses are writing intensive and promote in all students critical reading skills and the ability to formulate effective written arguments. Through its core curriculum, the major also cultivates skills specific to the historian, especially research and writing based upon the systematic analysis of primary documents.

The program's overall aim is to deepen the critical habits of mind that arise from the study of time and change. These capacities are the hallmarks of liberal learning, but they are also the foundation for success in post-graduate studies and careers of many kinds, including business, law, and public affairs.

Major in History

- Students must normally earn a "C-" or higher grade in all courses used to satisfy major requirements and may not generally count courses that are graded as satisfactory/unsatisfactory. If a student opts to take First-Year Seminar (AS.001.xxx) cross-listed with the History and earns an S grade, this course may apply towards major requirements even though it is graded satisfactory/unsatisfactory.
- For students who choose to focus on one geographical area, two courses must be taken outside the student's area of focus. The defined areas of focus are: Europe (HIST-EUROPE), United States (HIST-US), Latin America/Caribbean (HIST-LATAM), Africa (HIST-AFRICA), Asia (HIST-ASIA), North Africa/Middle East (HIST-AFRICA).
- At least 4 of the 8 history electives/upper-level courses must normally be completed with courses taken directly from the JHU History department (AS.100.xxx). Four courses may be chosen from among the following two kinds: (1) courses cross-listed in History offered by other JHU departments, and/or (2) courses taken at another institution that are either directly equivalent to JHU history courses or approved by the Director of Undergraduate Studies

The history department strongly encourages all eligible history majors to pursue the honors track in history. The track culminates in the senior thesis, a yearlong, "capstone" research project completed under the direct supervision of an individual faculty advisor. Like all capstone projects, the senior thesis is intellectually challenging and its completion almost always brings with it a tremendous sense of accomplishment. It also hones the talented young historian's capacity to sustain a cogent argument based on primary evidence in the long form essay. These skills and the completion of a sustained independent project are also important practical assets when seeking a job or a post-graduate education.

A general cumulative GPA of 3.25 and a cumulative GPA in history of 3.5 are normally prerequisites for undertaking the senior thesis, and to obtain honors students will normally be expected to complete the thesis with a grade of A- or better. All thesis writers must also enroll in both the AS.100.507 Senior Honors Thesis (fall, 3 credits) and AS.100.508 Senior Honors Thesis (spring, 3 credits) - enrollment is by instructor's permission and will be granted only to students who have obtained a commitment from a faculty thesis advisor. This commitment should normally be obtained no later than April 30th of the junior year.

For questions about the honors track in history or finding a thesis advisor, consult your departmental advisor or the current Director of Undergraduate Studies.
